ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: The tragedies of Sept. 11 shook the United States to its core and changed the lives of millions across the nation. On that day, retired Master Sgt. Max Beilke died after terrorists flew a hijacked airplane into the outer ring of the Pentagon, where he was attending a meeting. At that time, Beilke was the deputy chief of the Army Retirement Services Division of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel.

Six years later, the installation is dedicating the Human Resources Center to Beilke, who served in Vietnam, Germany, Korea and numerous assignments in the U.S. The Human Resources Center is located inside the old cooks and bakers school. Fort Meade was Beilke's last assignment before he retired from the Army in 1974. After he retired, Beilke served on the installation's retiree council and had planned to spend time volunteering around post after his retirement.

Beilke, an advocate for Soldier's rights was instrumental in getting Congress to pass the "TRICARE for Life" program, which now allows retirees to keep their TRICARE benefits past the age of 65.
